WorldSkills stars shine a light on the sector

Julia Belgutay (/News/author/julia-belgutay)
13th October 2017 at 00:00

Team UK's competitors have put their lives on hold for over two years to prepare for the 'Skills Olympics'

For the next week, I’ll be reporting from the WorldSkills competition in Abu Dhabi, which kicks off with a spectacular opening ceremony. I have been following the story of many of Team UK's competitors for over two years, and it is impossible to not be in awe of the commitment these young people have shown.

Despite no guarantee of success at the competition next week, they have put their lives on hold for over two years, spending thousands of hours training and perfecting their respective skills. Painting and decorating competitor Jordan
Charters told me that the best moment would be finishing the final day of the contest so he could “finally have his life back”.

Brilliant examples for their peers

How often do we see young people portrayed as notoriously late and constantly distracted by Instagram and Snapchat? How often do we read about employer concerns that they lack the key skills the workplace requires?

The young competitors who will be representing the UK over the coming days are the very best of the FE and apprenticeship system. They are not the only ones working as hard as they possibly can to get as good as they can possibly get; thousands of youngsters do that in colleges across the UK every day. But the members of Team UK are brilliant examples to their peers – and to the rest of us as well.

Most read

1. GCSE resits can help students feel like successes – not ‘failures’ (/news/further-education/breaking-views/gcse-resits-can-help-students-feel-successes-not-failures)
2. ‘Very different’ approach needed to GCSE resits, Milton admits (/news/further-education/breaking-news/very-different-approach-needed-gcse-resits-milton-admits)
3. The UK is paying for its ‘low emphasis’ on skills (/news/further-education/breaking-views/uk-paying-its-low-emphasis-skills)
4. Dolly for some lolly (/news/further-education/breaking-views/dolly-some-lolly)
5. One in four sixth-form colleges converting to become academies (/news/further-education/breaking-news/one-four-sixth-form-colleges-converting-become-academies)
7. ‘Scrap GCSE resits now before we condemn another 150K young people to fa... (/news/further-education/breaking-views/scrap-gcse-resits-now-we-condemn-another-150k-young-people)

Grayling: ‘Lots of apprentices’ needed to address engineering skills gap (/news/further-education/breaking-news/grayling-lots-apprentices-needed-address-engineering-skills-gap)
WorldSkills stars shine a light on the sector | Tes

Winners of the Skills Show 2017 announced
19th November 2017 at 10:17

One in four sixth-form colleges converting to become academies
WorldSkills stars shine a light on the sector | Tes

17th November 2017 at 00:03

Ofstedwatch: the latest Ofsted reports for FE and skills

17th November 2017 at 00:01
Grayling: ‘Lots of apprentices’ needed to address engineering skills gap
16th November 2017 at 13:17

Milton Keynes College joins Collab Group
16th November 2017 at 12:02

The guide by your side – ensuring you are always up to date with the latest in education.

Get Tes magazine online and delivered to your door. Stay up to date with the latest research, teacher innovation and insight, plus classroom tips and techniques with a Tes magazine subscription. With a Tes magazine subscription you get exclusive access to our CPD library. Including our New Teachers’ special for NQTS, Ed Tech, How to Get a Job, Trip Planner, Ed Biz Special and all Tes back issues.

Subscribe now (https://www.tes.com/store/magazine)